A new collection has been placed on display in Tucson during the year, at a cost of nine thousand seven hundred and eighty-one dollars and six cents, and paid by donation from the people. In this school there are three employed. There are thirty-one in the building, one exempted by disability, and by order of higher grade in another, and the third by being in primary school. These boys in the primary room are taught Spanish and English. In the other rooms, English only is taught. From the rapid increase in the general study of Spanish on a certain side of the city, the school is being enlarged, and the building is being improved.

The principal is Mr. John W. Brown, and the manager of the collection is Mr. J. J. Gould. A new building is being erected for the purpose of housing the children of the city, and the collection is being continued.

The left side of the document contains a vertical list of names and dates, which appear to be a log or index. The text is heavily obscured by noise and artifacts, making it difficult to read. The right side of the document contains a large, dense block of text, which is also heavily obscured by noise and artifacts. The text is arranged in a grid-like pattern, with columns of text separated by vertical lines. The overall appearance is that of a heavily degraded or corrupted document.
